

MAY, MIGHT, COULD FOR POSSIBILITY

May, might and could are used to say that something is possible now or in the future.

MAY = +++

MIGHT = ++

COULD = +

READ THE INFORMATION IN THE CHARTS AND MATCH THEM WITH THE CORRECT REASON.

I am afraid of dogs because...

She may drown.

I don't like spiders because...

They could fall or crash.

Paola never goes swimming because...

He might tell me that I have a terrible illness.

I don't like flying on planes because...

They may bite me.

I worry about going to the doctor because...

some of them could jump on me.

COMPLETE THE SENTENCES SO THEY HAVE SIMILAR MEANINGS

- I don't know if the science fiction movie is out this week. (could)
The science fiction movie could be out this week.
- It's uncertain if his flight will depart tonight. (might)
His flight _____ tonight.
- I think she is at work. (may)
She _____ at work. (may)
- I don't know if I will go to see a movie tonight. It depends on my boss. (might)
I _____ a movie tonight.
- Some people think that Elvis Presley is alive. Someone would have seen him by now. (could) Elvis Presley _____ alive.
- Maybe my mother will arrive from England tomorrow. (may)
My mother _____ from England tomorrow.
- Perhaps Alejandra will buy new clothes if she goes to the mall. (might)
Alejandra _____ some new clothes if she goes to the mall.
- I'm not sure if Jorge will enjoy traveling to the jungle. (could)
Jorge _____ traveling to the jungle.
- Perhaps my favorite singer will visit my city one day. (may)
My favorite singer _____ my city one day.