- A. Lapta, a traditional Russian sports game, is over four centuries old. Balls and bats dating back to the 14th century have been found among the ruins of Novgorod the Great. In the 18th century lapta was an important activity for physically preparing the soldiers of Peter the Great's army. Later the game became a major pastime. Today lapta is not very popular.
- B. Apologies are the way to build good friendships and relationships. When you say "I'm sorry" (and really mean it), it's because you probably feel bad that something you did or said hurt another person. Saying you're sorry is more than just words. You're also saying that you respect the other person and you care about his or her feelings. Apologizing shows you have empathy.
- C. The Russian doll, or matryoshka, to use the Russian name, is one of the most recognizable symbols of Russia. It is an example of the nation's ancient traditions of woodworking and decorative handicrafts. There has always been a demand for the matryoshka, both as a children's toy and as a gift, and the doll has always been a symbol of the family.
- D. Anna Lawrence is a fantastic storyteller and the truth behind the character's family creates a mystery for the reader. The book reflects the social problems of the city where the action takes place. But what really makes the author's style special is her skill of describing the characters; they are real humans in search of their identity and place in the world.
- E. The Stolby nature reserve is one of the most popular tourism destinations in Siberia. We recommend booking a nice cottage when you go there. There are separate small cottages for six and eight people, and a hostel. The cottages area is called 'the village' and is a bit of a hike from the reserve's main reception buildings but there is a car service for when you first arrive with your luggage

Задание 19. (in class)

*Imagine that you are preparing a project with your friend. You have found some interesting material or the presentation and you want to read this text to your friend.
You have 1.5 minutes to read the text silently, then be ready to read it out aloud.
You will not have more than 1.5 minutes to read it.*

Chameleons don't change colour to match the background. They change colour as a result of different emotional states. Chameleons change colour when they beat another chameleon in a fight. They change colour when a member of the opposite sex steps into view and they sometimes change colour due to fluctuations in either light or temperature.

A chameleon's skin contains several layers of specialised cells. Altering the balance between these layers causes the skin to reflect different kinds of light, making chameleons a kind of walking colour-wheel. It's odd how persistent the belief that they change colour to match the background is. The myth first appears in the work of a minor Greek writer of entertaining stories and potted biographies. Aristotle, far more influential and writing a century earlier, had already, quite correctly, linked the colour-change to fear. But it's come back with a vengeance since and to this day is perhaps the only thing most people think they 'know' about chameleons.
