

Read the passage then answer the questions:

Travelling nowadays is much easier than before. People can go to different countries all over the world more often than they used to do in the past. Nowadays, some people travel for work, others travel to study, but the greatest numbers of people who travel are mainly tourists. They visit other countries to have good time, to see the world and to enjoy their times abroad.

Tourism has become an industry. Many countries have already established a tourist industry. When people travel to another country, they spend their money there. They sleep in hotels, eat in restaurants and buy souvenirs to take them as presents for their families.
