

Last night someone robbed your most precious object: a guitar that belonged to your favorite singer. Read what the three people who live with you said and complete them using the verbs given in the correct form. Who doesn't have a good alibi? _____

Mother

I _____ (watch) TV with my daughter when I heard a noise. Then, I heard a second noise. I was afraid, so I called my husband and went to my kids' room. I _____ (walk) when I saw a man go into my kids' bedroom. I _____ already _____ (cry) when I heard my husband's voice. He _____ (talk) to our son Brad.

Father

I _____ (talk) to my mother in her room when I heard a terrible noise. I knew my wife _____ (watch) a movie on TV, so I thought one of my kids _____ (do) something dangerous. I decided to take a look and, while I _____ (go) to their bedroom, I heard another noise. I listened to my wife's voice, so I hurried up, went into my kids' room and saw my son Brad. He _____ (play) with his toy car near the window.

Uncle

I didn't hear any noise while I _____ (sleep) in my bedroom. I woke up in the morning and I _____ (have) breakfast when I heard the terrible news on TV. I _____ (learn) how to play the guitar with my nephew because I love music. He told me he could lend me his famous guitar, but now...

Jennifer and Josh are having a conversation. Put the sentences in order to find out what they are saying.

- () What kind of question is that?
- (12) Oh please...
- () I think it's OK.
- () That can't be. You bought those pants last week!
- () Be serious. I have no idea. I think I prefer the T-shirt and the pants you were wearing.
- () Oh come on. Don't change your clothes! We're going to be late for his party.

- () Now what do you think about this dress?
- (1) Josh, do you think I look pretty in this T-shirt?
- () Ben's birthday party is today and I want to look nice.
- () Hmm. The T-shirt is OK, but I'm going to change this pair of jeans. They look old.
- () Give me just five minutes and we can go.
- () Is that so? I totally agree with you. I think I'm going to put them back on.

