

- narrative form for the past
- A time that is officially determined in a schedule or programme Present simple
- Only temporary (a short agreed-upon time period) Present continuous
- A time that is unofficially/ personally determined (and e.g. scheduled in a personal calendar) Simple past
- Sequentially occurring events Past perfect
- look back to something that happened before a certain point in the past