

My Grandpa's Village

A. Read Tom's description of his grandpa's village in 1948.

This is a picture of Valebury in 1948. It was very different!

There wasn't a cinema or a theatre in the village, so people listened to singers on the street.

There weren't any cars but people had bikes to travel from one place to the other. There wasn't an airport and there weren't any planes.

People didn't have computers or email, but there were telephones in some houses. They also wrote letters to communicate with friends.

Many houses had electric light but some people also used candles. People had cookers in their kitchens, but they didn't have microwaves. Most people didn't have TVs but they had lots of books. Things were very different in the past but it was a nice village.
