

"Sam"

by Jessie Ware

Sat inside a _____ station

Drinking a cup _____ coffee on my _____

Listening to the _____ conversation

About children and holidays _____

Last night I sat inside a _____ room

And I _____ thinking 'bout my childhood home

I think I need to talk to _____ 'Cause I'm about to _____ a child all _____

And I hope I'm as _____ as my mother _____ what kind of _____ will I be?

I hope she knows that I _____ a man _____ my father

Sam, my baby, and me

I've been thinking about my husband _____ seventeen, the only love _____

And I could _____ no one above _____

So beautiful and so _____ alone

I _____ not even called my family

About the life _____ about to find me _____

For many years, the lights _____ blind me

But now I find the only one that _____ me home