

"Sam"

by Jessie Ware

Sat inside a _____ station
Drinking a cup _____ coffee on my _____ Listening to the _____ conversation
About children and holidays _____

Last night I sat inside a _____ room
And I _____ thinking 'bout my childhood home I think I need to talk to _____ 'Cause I'm about to _____ a child all _____

And I hope I'm as _____ as my mother _____ what kind of _____ will I be?
I hope she knows that I _____ a man _____ my father
Sam, my baby, and me

I've been thinking about my husband _____ seventeen, the only love _____
And I could _____ no one above _____
So beautiful and so _____ alone

I _____ not even called my family
About the life _____ about to find me _____

For many years, the lights _____ blind me

But now I find the only one that _____ me home