Choose the correct word which describes the sentence

a homophone · anagram

1. I want you to create another word from the word 'teacher' that means someone who is deceptive – just like a teacher.

cohesion · contronym

cledonism · cruciverbalist · agent · exophoric

2. He is always trying to join lots of words together in a grid to see if he can link them.

cruciverbalist

3. One should never make jokes about 'Old Nik' as he is so evil a bogey man.

cledonism · agent · macrology

glottochronology

contronym · cohesion · hypophra

4. How can I dust the dust from the floor, surely this cannot be overlooked by the teacher who is overlooking us.

glottochronology

5. In many situations we used the passive so we don't need to mention the person or thing that did it.

anagram · cledonism · agent

ellipsis

6. Especially in writing, ideas need to be joined together in a logical and sequential manner.

macrology · cledonism

cohesion · contronym

hypophora · ellipsis · cohesion

7. You don't need to explain everything… just use these dots and they can guess the content!

cruciverbalist

glottochronology

8. Who is 'they' when we talk of corruption, such as 'they' take our taxes. Is they, them or us?

exophoric · cohesion · homophone

9. I came here to see the sea, but all I could hear was my dear wife telling me how dear it was to travel so far.

homophone · cohesion · agent

10. Only after we completed truly extensive research did we conclude that Adam and Eve must have spoken English.

glottochronolgy · cruciverbalist · macrology · cledonism

decoding

cruciverbalist · hypophora

11. Is this a similar word to rhetorical? Yes it is, but it sounds so much more sophisticated when it is said in this way.

exophoric

macrology · cruciverbalist

12. Our boss is the finest example of this that I have ever known. He just presented this talk on learning vocabulary and I have absolutely no idea what he was talking about.

glottochronology · ellipsis