Preparing for a trip

I always start packing at least two weeks before I go on a trip. Well, when I say 'packing', I mean 'thinking about packing'. But I think that's the most difficult part, to be honest. First, I make a list. Then, if I don't have something, there's time to get it. I'm going on a camping trip next week to practise for my Duke of Edinburgh Silver Award. I haven't packed anything yet, but I've made a list, and I've got my sleeping bag, clothes and waterproof clothes. I guess I should see if they fit in my rucksack next ...

1 The writer

A always packs two weeks before she goes on a trip.

B starts to think about packing two weeks or more before she goes on a trip.

C never thinks about packing until two weeks before she goes on a trip.

The Living Rainforest

If you can't fly to the Amazon, come to the Living Rainforest, near Newbury. There's so much to see there! The Living Rainforest supports conservation work with animals who are losing their natural habitats. It has three large glass houses, where you can see more than 650 amazing rainforest plants and animals without getting on a plane. And, if you book a 'living rainforest experience', you can even meet and feed one of the animals!

Our trips leave from Victoria coach station in London, at 8.00 a.m, and return at 4.00 p.m., getting back to London by 6.00 p.m.

2 The text is part of

A an advertisement.

B an email.

C a news report.

3 Which statement is true?

A You have to go to the Living Rainforest by plane from London.

B You can visit the Living Rainforest on a day trip from London.

C The trip starts in London and finishes in Newbury.

High adventure

Bella stretched her arms above her head, then quickly put them back inside her sleeping bag. The morning air was cold and fresh. She could hardly feel the end of her nose. Luckily, her hat was still on. As she started to feel more awake, she could see that the sides of the tent looked bright orange. That was a good sign. It meant the weather was sunny and clear, not dull and grey. But, most importantly, was it snowing? 'If it isn't snowing, we'll climb to the top of the mountain today,' she thought. She couldn't wait ...

4 The writer describes someone who is

- A waking up in a tent on a mountain.
- B going to sleep in a tent on a mountain.
- C waking up in the dark on a mountain.

5 Bella is feeling

- A cold and nervous.
