Jack and Alex are going to the river for a picnic. There are sandwiches, cakes, bananas and pears in the basket . . . and Jack has a big bottle of Pepsi. Alex has two towels in his bag – they are going swimming.

They have good bicycles. They are riding beside the river now. Jack has the picnic basket on the back of his bicycle.

They are under a big tree near the river.
The picnic basket is beside the tree. Alex is taking the towels from his bag. A cow is looking at Alex and Jack.

They are swimming in the river. The cow is looking at the basket. She is smelling the cakes and sandwiches. She is hungry.

Oh no! The cow has a pear in her mouth – she is eating the picnic!

Now the children are looking at the cow. They are shouting, but the cow is not listening. She is eating.

Jack has a stick — he is throwing the stick of the cow and Alex is shouting. But the cow is not hungry now . . . and there are no sandwiches or cakes for the children.
