

A SCHOOL DAY

1) READ AND LISTEN TO THE ARTICLE

In the UK, teens usually start school at about 8.30 and finish at 3.30. But at one school in London, classes start at 1.30 and finish at 7.00.

Studies show that teens need about nine hours' sleep a night, but hardly ever go to bed early. The majority of teens don't like early mornings, but they are often very active in the afternoon and evening. So at Hampton Court House School, some students only go to school in the afternoon.

Anna is a student at the school. How are afternoon classes for her and her family? 'They're great,' says Anna. 'I do my homework at 10.00 and go to bed at 1.00a.m.!' 'Anna sleeps for nine hours every night,' says her mum. 'And, the great thing is, she's never late for school!'
