Where does garbage go when people throw it? The answer is it goes to landfills. Landfills are big holes in the ground. Plastic cans, food waste, old clothes and even paper go to landfills. Sometimes, our waste end up in the sea or in the forest. So this is not an eco-friendly solution!

Many green cities in the world try to reuse their garbage. One way of reusing garbage is by recycling it. Of course, we can't recycle everything. For example, we cannot recycle food waste. But plastic, glass and paper are easy to recycle.

Recycling more things means saving more animals. Plastic, especially, is behind the death of millions of animals in the sea and in forests. So we should all start recycling our trash.
