to her own devices	bellowed
pandemonium	coursed through
lead	oblivious

Conflict

Two hours later, the house was ready. Mom, Arshadha and I stood there admiring our

9. _____. However, we weren't prepared for one

10. _____. One major blunder!

We had the balloons, streamers, lights, snacks, presents and even candles. Except...the cake!

"Arshadha! You were in charge!" I 11. _____. "Oops, must have slipped my mind! Let me call someone to pick that up" she said.

Thinking, she was going to call our neighbor Sam, I left her 12. _____.

However, what I heard next will unleashed 13. _____ in me.

Climax

"Dad! Can you please pick up a birthday cake?"

I heard Arshadha on the phone.

"For who?"

That was clearly Dad's voice.

Panic 14. _____ my veins. My legs turned to 15. _____. I couldn't react fast enough.

"It's for you silly! We are planning a surprise birthday party for you!" Arshadha cooed, completely 16. _____ she had rained on our parade.

leaf
waltzes arduous exasperation

"ARSHADHAAAAAAAAAAAAA!" I screamed, shaking her like a 17. _____ for letting the cat out of the bag. Her phone dropped.

At that exact moment, Dad 18. _____ in.

"SURPRISE!" Arshadha squealed, still oblivious she had ruined our 19. _____ efforts. I slapped my forehead in 20. _____.

Conclusion

Even though the party was ruined, Dad was immensely grateful we made the efforts to plan. He enjoyed the party. We finally did buy a cake - together. As for Arshadha, she's still spilling beans and letting cats out of their bags. I guess some people never learn.
