Once a boy and he saw a penguin at his door.

The boy wanted to know where it had come from, but it refused to tell him.

The penguin was sad and the boy said it must be lost.

He checked at the "lost and found" office, but no one missing a penguin.

So the boy ran to help the penguin find its way home.

That night the boy slept for disappointment.

He tried to help the penguin but he forgot how.

The next morning he South Pole. But how that penguins come from the he get there?

They everything they need and together the rowboat out to the sea.

They traveled south for many days and nights with the boy telling stories all the way. The penguin listened to everything that the boy said.
