REPORTED QUESTIONS

Use and structure of reported questions	IF/WETHER	DO/DOES/DID questions
When we ask for some information we sometimes begin the question with another question . The order changes. Study this example: Direct question: Where is he? Indirect: Do you know where he is?	Use if/whether when there's no question word. Example: -Did he see Mary? -Do you know if/ whether he saw Mary?	Direct question Where does she work? Where did he go? Indirect question Do you know where she works? (don't use does) Do you know where he went? (don't use did)

Exercise 3 Choose the correct option.

I saw Peter yesterday. I hadn't seen him for ages! I asked he/him how was he/ he was. He said/told he was working in London. He also said/told me that he had got married five years ago and had a son. I asked him what was his name/his name was. He said his name were/was Arthur. I also asked him how old was he/he was. He said Arthur was two years old. He also asked me some questions. He asked me when/ whether I was working and I told him I was working as a secretary in a town near London. He also asked me if I was married and I told/said to him I had a boyfriend but we hadn't talked about getting married yet. It was late and he said he had to go but he asked me whether/ when I wanted to meet his family and I agreed so he gave me his phone number.
