

True or False

1. ID uses the field name, if you let the Access to create primary key for you.
2. Memo data type is useful when you want to include sentences or paragraph.
3. You can include records from only one table in query.
4. We can create one or more primary keys in a table.
5. A Text field can store upto 65,536 characters.
6. Field name is the name of a record.
7. The default field size of Text field is 50.
8. When you use a form to enter data, you must remember to save all if the new data enter in the table.
9. The extension of MS-ACCESS file is MDB.
10. OLE is the default data type in MS-ACCESS.
11. A field name is used to identify the data stored in the field.
12. A control is a graphical object added to a form.
13. We can use query to display table information.
14. You can undo the deleted records from action query.
15. You cannot include spaces or punctuations in a query name.
16. You can modify report in print preview mode.
17. You must include at least one field in a query.
18. * represents a character in an expression.
19. ? represents a character in an expression.
20. # represents a digit in an expression.
21. Picture can be stored in the Access database.
22. Variable can be declared without data type.
23. We can change data type of a field in design view.
24. MS-Access is used for creating tailored software.
25. Picture stored in a database can be seen in table.
26. Logical value can also be stored in database.
27. Objects bar contains shortcuts to creating different objects in Access like Table, Query, Report, etc.
28. New field cannot be added in Access after designation of table.
29. @ symbol is used in format property of Text field, which means text character is required.
30. & symbol is used in format property of Text field, which means text character is not required.