Drive-in and walk-in COVID-19 testing centre comes to Slough

The first hybrid walk-in and drive-in COVID-19 testing centre in the country is coming to Slough from tomorrow afternoon.

The testing centre will be based in the Montem Car Park, Montem Lane. People who do not show symptoms but are worried they may be infected will be able to visit for a test by foot or in a car.

The centre will be open for people who make an appointment and for those who just want to drop-in, but the council is warning drop-ins may have a slightly longer wait.

Up to four people can come together in the same car and all ages are welcome. People can visit from anywhere in the country and actual testing should take between 15 and 30 minutes.

Anyone arriving on foot over the age of three must wear face coverings or they will not be tested. There will be a special area for testing for those who do not wish to remove face coverings in public. A curtained area is available. Parents are welcome to bring children.

Josie Wragg, chief executive at Slough Borough Council, said: "We are proud to be organising the first hybrid site in the country. People can drive and walk in with no appointment."

"An area like Slough has seen high levels of infection and has a large black and ethnic minority population which is more at risk."
