I asked Dad for a new bike. “You must learn half the money,” said Dad.

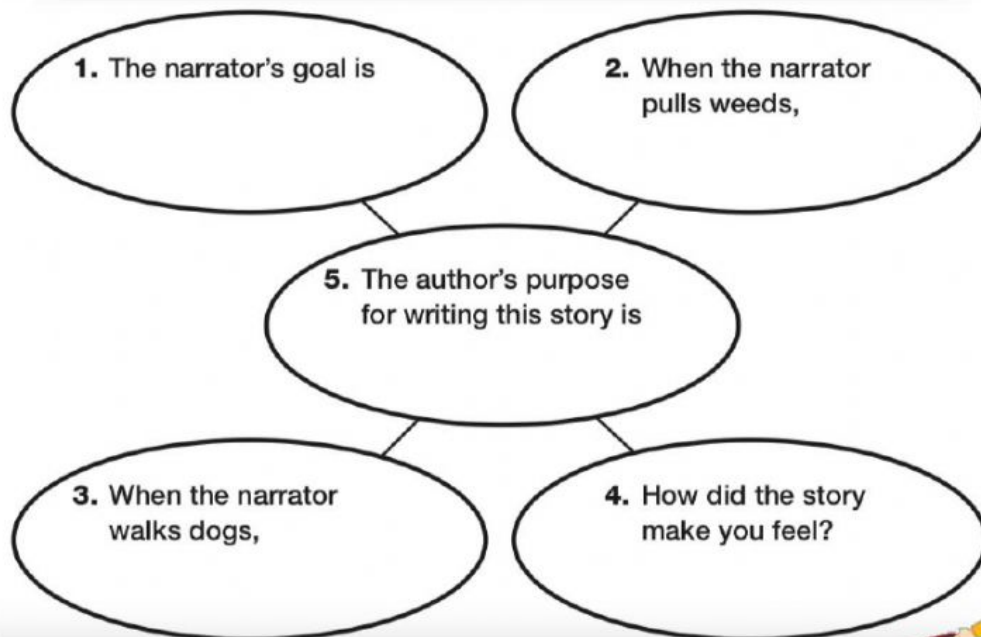

I ran to ask the neighbors whether they had any jobs I could do. Mrs. Jones hired me to pull weeds. I worked hard, but when Mrs. Jones came out of her house, she shouted, “You pulled up my good flowers!” I got my piggy bank and gave Mrs. Jones money for new flower seeds.

Mr. Chester hired me to walk his dogs.

Everything went well until the dogs saw a squirrel. They barked and jumped. Before I knew it, the leashes were tied around my legs. Mr. Chester cut off the leashes to free me. I went to my piggy bank to get Mr. Chester money for new leashes.

Then I decided to talk with Dad. “Dad,” I said. “I can’t afford to keep working. I think I’ll just paint my old bike.”

“Good thinking,” Dad answered.
