After finishing high school me and my friends decided to go around Europe. It was my first time travelling without my parents with the money I earned working as a waitress. We started our train journey in Ljubljana and continued towards _____ (Croatia) capital, Zagreb. The visit was short as we only stayed there for a couple of hours. In the evening our train departed towards the neighbouring country, whose language, _____ (Hungary) isn't similar to any other languages we know. This is why we misunderstood the train conductor about where the train would make its first stop. We woke up somewhere on the border with _____ (Austria). Again, we didn't know a word in _____ (Germany) but we somehow figured out which train to take next to get us to Prague. We ate some local food there and even met a _____ (Sweden) girl who travelled around the world hitchhiking. Our next destination was Berlin. We arrived too late so we had to spend a night on a train station. I remember some _____ (the UK) tourists who were looking at us thinking we are homeless. Amsterdam, _____ (the Netherlands) capital, was also on our itinerary. We rented bikes and visited Anne Frank's house. The afternoon train journey towards _____ (France) was very comfortable and enjoyable. We had a chance to practice our _____ (Spain) and even met some _____ (Portugal) passengers. After four days in Paris, our trip came to an end. We got on the direct train to Milan and from there to Trieste. We had the time of our lives.

It was just before midnight on October 31st last year. The road was clear and Susan Lee was carefully driving home after visiting her sister. Suddenly, out of nowhere, a young man (jumping, was jumping, jumped) in front of her car. He (wore, was wearing, was wore) a dark coloured raincoat and carrying a backpack. Susan (steps, was stepping, stepped) hard on the brake pedal but it was too late. She (got, gets, was getting) out of the car but, to her surprise, there (be, was, were) nobody there. While she (was looking, looked, looks) under the car, she felt a cold wind on her face. She was still looking under her car when a lorry (stopping, stopped, was stopping) behind her. The lorry driver asked her if she needed help to start her car so she (tell, told, was telling) him about the young man. He (isn't, didn't, wasn't) seem surprised. »In October 1998, there was a car accident on this road and a young man was fatally run over. You're not the first to have seen his ghost here«, the lorry driver said in a mysterious tone.
