

Present Perfect Tense

NEVER

I have never eaten a snake

SINCE

He has been teaching since 2011

EVER

Have you ever done this before?

FOR

She has been waiting for 7 months

ALREADY

They have paid the rent already

YET

Have you called him yet?

Present Perfect

(has / have ) + (past participle)

Form: Subject+have/has+Verb (V3)

I/you/we/they = have

He/she/it = has

JUST

The car just stopped

Have you walked the dog yet? No I haven't, not yet.

Have you ever worn a ballerina skirt? Yes, I have.

Has he cooked the dinner already? No, he hasn't yet.

They have been living in this country since 2001.

I have been waiting at the office for three hours.

I have never worked at the pet shop before

They have just finished watching the movie about Shawn sheep!

Present Perfect Tense reading practice

Masha has already done her homework

Hey Lisa, have you read this book yet?

Nobody has ever climbed that mountain

Our son has just learned how to read

John has never seen an ocean yet

I haven't had this much fun since I have been a kid

I have missed my bus just now

The situation has changed since 2015

You have grown so much since last time I saw you

He has written ten short stories in the last year

Things have changed for my country

I have never watched that movie before

In the last hundred years, traveling has become much easier

I have called you just now

Nobody has ever done this before

Where have you been? I have slept for eight hours

What have you done?

Have you ever traveled to planet Mars?

Have they arrived yet? We have arrived at the airport just now

already
yet
ever
never
since
for
just

 I have known you
for all my life

