Many people worry that fossil fuels, like coal and gas will run out (run out). However, scientists predict that, very soon, the Earth's biggest problem is (be) water, not fuel. If global warming continues (continue), it will have (have) serious consequences for millions of people. For example, sea levels will rise (rise), and it will be (be) possible to stay in many towns and villages. Unless people move (move) to higher ground, their homes will flood. In other places, due to rising temperatures and modern farming, the land is getting drier. Large areas will become (become) desert if we look after (look after) the land better.
