Ernesto and Alberto plans of the route were ambitious, across the Andes, along the coast of Chile, through the Atacama Desert and into the Peruvian Amazon to in Venezuela just in time for Ernesto's 30th birthday on 2 April. However, their motorbike called La Poderosa down, and they were forced to at a much slower pace, often walking, and they didn't arrive in Caracas until July.

During their Guevara and Granado met poor indigenous peasants, and the film became more serious once they realized of the terrible of the majority of the they met on the way, by travelling on foot. Some of them didn't speak only quechua. They were very and they didn't have . They also told them about how the rich people abused of their poverty. The indigenous people also taught them how to in the high mountains.

Ernesto and Alberto the ruins of Maccu Pichu in Peru. He was about how the Inca was capable of building such beauty and it was destroyed by the ones who built the city of Lima.
