Dolphin Therapy for Persons with Special Needs

Dolphins have a [] way of making people feel more [] about life. There are several organisations which help people with special needs by getting them to play with []

People with special needs often live [] lives in hospitals or day centres where they [] set programmes. Depending on their illnesses they get up at [] times, eat at fixed times, do [] exercise at regular times throughout the day and go to [] at the same time. They lead very regular lives.

What are some of these people with [] needs doing today? They're in Florida and they're playing with dolphins. A [] association has organised this day as a Christmas [] for them. The children are having fun swimming with the dolphins. They are holding onto the dolphins and the dolphins are pulling the children along. They are all enjoying every moment. These are people who don't always [] but who are smiling today.

Now answer the questions:

1. Where do people with special needs often live?

2. What time do they get up?
3. Do they do physical exercise?
4. Where are these people today?
5. Who has organised this day?
6. Are the children having fun?
7. Do they always smile?
8. Are they smiling today?
