Final Check: Relating to Parents

Here is a final opportunity for you to strengthen your knowledge of the ten words. First read the following selection carefully. Then fill in each blank with a word from the box at the top of the previous page. (Context clues will help you figure out which word goes in which blank.) Use each word once.

How do you respond when your parents deny you permission to do something? For example, if you want to travel and work around the country for the summer, but your parents say you're too young, do you become irate° and angrily demand that they stop curtailing° your rights? Do you plan a(n) (1) _____, vowing to sabotage° their summer plans because they've ruined yours? Or do you explain the (2) _____ behind your request, so that your parents will understand your reasoning?

The way you behave when you and your parents reach a(n) (3) _____ on an issue can have a big effect on how they view you. Sure, you could retort°, "Fine. I'll go buy a leash so you can really run my life." But if you are consistently (4) _____ like that, you'll just strengthen their (5) _____ of you as being too immature to be on your own. Also, if you are (6) _____ in your begging, asking them three hundred times a day, "But why won't you let me travel alone?" you might elicit° this response: "You may do some traveling alone right now—go directly to your room."

Instead, approach your parents in a (7) _____ way and try to develop a strong, friendly (8) _____ with them. An amiable°, respectful relationship will make them more (9) _____ to see things your way. Even if you can't (10) _____ them to change their minds about this summer's plans, your chances of getting their support will be better the next time you want to try something new.
