Robin Jones thought her grandfather was a quiet, shy man. Then she read her grandmother's diary and learned about the one time he wasn't ...

A All in black and white

Grandma's diary was about the year 1950. Every day she wrote about her life. Before June, it was mostly about her job at a jewelry store and the lives of the other young women who worked there. But after June, she started to mention a regular customer—a nice young man who came in to buy a necklace for his mother. Then he came back the next day, and the next, and the next ...

B Will he, won't he?

Each time, he asked Grandma to help him, but he never bought anything else. Eventually, one of the other salespeople said to Grandma, "I know why he comes. It's to see you!" They all expected Grandpa to ask her out, but he never did.

C The mouse becomes a lion

Then one day everything changed. Grandpa was in the store when a man ran in with a gun. He pointed it at Grandma and told her to give him a diamond ring. In an instant, that shy young man changed. "Drop the gun!" he shouted, and pushed the man to the floor. "Don't you dare frighten that young woman! She's going to be my wife one day!"

The quiet man?

D Wedding bells

After that, the police came and arrested the robber, and everyone said that Grandpa was a hero. But there was something Grandma still wasn't sure about. "Did you just ask me to marry you?" she asked Grandpa. Grandpa just smiled, but two months later they got married!
