A) READING COMPREHENSION

1. Malala Yousafzai

Read the text about a Pakistani activist and answer the questions on the following page. The first example has been done for you.

Malala Yousafzai, born 12 July 1997 is a Pakistani activist for female education and the youngest-ever Nobel Prize recipient. She is known mainly for human rights advocacy for education and for women in her native Swat Valley in the Khyber Pakhtunkhwa province of northwest Pakistan, where the local Taliban had at times banned girls from attending school. Yousafzai's advocacy has since grown into an international movement.

Her family runs a chain of schools in the region. In early 2009, when she was 11–12, Yousafzai wrote a blog under a pseudonym for the BBC detailing her life under Taliban occupation, their attempts to take control of the valley, and her views on promoting education for girls in the Swat Valley. The following summer, journalist Adam B. Ellick made a New York Times documentary^[2] about her life as the Pakistani military intervened in the region, culminating in the Second Battle of Swat. Yousafzai rose in prominence, giving interviews in print and on television, and she was nominated for the International Children's Peace Prize by South African activist Desmond Tutu.

On the afternoon of 9 October 2012, Yousafzai boarded her school bus in the northwest Pakistani district of Swat. A gunman asked for her by name, then pointed a pistol at her and fired three shots. One bullet hit the left side of Yousafzai's forehead, travelled under her skin through the length of her face, and then went into her shoulder. In the days immediately following the attack, she remained unconscious and in critical condition, but later her condition improved enough for her to be sent to the Queen Elizabeth Hospital in Birmingham, England, for intensive rehabilitation.

The assassination attempt sparked a national and international outpouring of support for Yousafzai. Deutsche Welle wrote in January 2013 that Yousafzai may have become "the most famous teenager in the world." United Nations Special Envoy for Global Education Gordon Brown launched a UN petition in Yousafzai's name, using the slogan "I am Malala" and demanding that all children worldwide be in school by the end of 2015 – a petition which helped lead to the ratification of Pakistan's first Right to Education Bill. In the 29 April 2013 issue of Time magazine, Yousafzai was featured on the magazine's front cover and as one of "The 100 Most Influential People in the World". She was the winner of Pakistan's first National Youth Peace Prize.

On 12 July 2013, Yousafzai spoke at the headquarters of the United Nations to call for worldwide access to education, and in September 2013 she officially opened the Library of Birmingham. Yousafzai is the recipient numerous international prizes. On 15 May 2014, Yousafzai was granted an honorary doctorate by the University of King's College in Halifax.

On 10 October 2014, Yousafzai was announced as the co-recipient of the 2014 Nobel Peace Prize for her struggle against the suppression of children and young people and for the right of all children to education. At age 17, Yousafzai is the youngest-ever Nobel Prize laureate. Yousafzai shared the prize with Kailash Satyarthi, a children's rights activist from India. She is the second Pakistani to receive a Nobel Prize and the only Pakistani winner of the Nobel Peace Prize; Abdus Salam was a 1979 Physics laureate.

2. Being famous

Read the text about famous people and find the words which correspond to the definitions below each paragraph. Copy the selected words. The first example has been done for you.

Lack of privacy is one of the biggest disadvantages of being a celebrity. Whatever they do outside their homes, people know about it, like getting speed ticket, being a diva at mall and chill with their friends at restaurants, everyone, if not the world, knows about the business.

0 someone's right to keep their personal matters and relationships secret

1 someone who is famous, especially in the entertainment business

Having Stalkers

We've all heard about those nasty cases of celebrity stalking that have gone out of control. Famous people are often followed or harassed by phone, email or messages by fans or followers who cross the line and become obsessed. Obsession can turn into threats and even physical harm.

2 someone who supports, admires, or believes in a particular person, group, or idea

3 physical or other injury or damage

Celebrities are constantly judged

They are judged for the clothes they wear, their bodies, make-up, personalities and cars that they drive. In newspapers, magazines, blogs, tabloids and social networks you can always find the rude, nasty, insulting news and lies about celebrity's daily routine. It's like we forget that they're human beings, who are often judged for doing what they love.

Celebrities and other famous people cannot lead lives of a normal person. They will have to live in their secluded world and will generally be unable to do things that the average person can. This disadvantage of being famous can stop celebrities from indulging in the little pleasures of life like going shopping to the supermarket, taking a walk, chilling at the park with their friends, having dinner with family at the local restaurant and playing ball at the neighbourhood playground.

6 to live a particular type of life

7 to allow yourself or another person to have something enjoyable, especially more than is good for you
