

1. The first hominid to walk upright was Sahelanthropus tchadensis, which lived about 7 million years ago. It was a small, apelike creature with a brain size similar to a modern chimpanzee.

2. The next hominid to appear was Australopithecus, which lived about 4 million years ago. It was a more advanced hominid with a larger brain and a more upright posture.

3. The third hominid to appear was Homo habilis, which lived about 2 million years ago. It was a more advanced hominid with a larger brain and a more upright posture.

4. The fourth hominid to appear was Homo erectus, which lived about 1 million years ago. It was a more advanced hominid with a larger brain and a more upright posture.

5. The fifth hominid to appear was Homo neanderthalensis, which lived about 400,000 years ago. It was a more advanced hominid with a larger brain and a more upright posture.

