One

Man: Oh, I can see Ann and Chris in this picture. They look very happy together.

Woman: Yes, I remember how they met. Ann was on holiday with me. One day we went to look at a coral reef and Chris was on the same boat. He came up to her and asked her out.

Man: Have you heard that for their [] they've booked a hotel which is about 7 meters [] the ocean surface? You have to scuba dive to reach your room.

Woman: Really? Sounds great. I had no idea! I thought they'd go []. They're both crazy about it. I guess they wanted a change...

Two

Man: Sue! I'm stuck in a terrible []

Woman: Okay, Mike, calm down.

Man: But I'm going to be late for the meeting. And what about my presentation? Can you do it?

Woman: Well, I don't think I can. I don't know much about the topic.

Man: What shall I do then? Can you think of something? Anything... Please!

Woman: OK. I'll talk to the boss and [] the situation. We can't [] the meeting at the [] but maybe we can start a bit later. I'll [] to you as soon as I know something.

Man: Thanks, Sue.

Three

If water is good for plants, maybe other [] can be good as well? Are there any positive effects of sweet [] on plant growth? As you may expect – there aren't. Plants will die if you pour a sweet fizzy drink on them. Most of us just use plain tap water but scientists have discovered that [] tap water with sparkling water can give even better results. Surprisingly, it will make plants grow faster and their leaves will get larger and greener. So, buy some for your plants and don't forget to share the news with everybody whose house plants are []

One of the best April Fools' Day jokes was [redacted] on the BBC in 1957. At that time, in the UK, pasta was mainly sold ready cooked and was called tinned spaghetti. On 1 st April, a BBC programme showed Italian families picking spaghetti from trees. About 8 million people watched the programme and hundreds phoned in to get more information on how to [redacted] spaghetti in their own gardens. The BBC told them to "simply place a tin in the ground and wait."
