

Parts of Speech
Singular Nouns That Don't Change Plural Forms

Some singular nouns are also used for their plural forms. That means they do not change.

Examples: one fish, two fish	one buffalo, two buffalo
one moose, two moose	one sheep, two sheep
one deer, two deer	one shrimp, two shrimp
one elk, two elk	one trout, two trout

For each word in bold, write if it is used as a singular or plural noun in the sentence.

- | | |
|---|----------------------|
| 1. The children saw a moose on their fieldtrip to the zoo. | singular |
| | <input type="text"/> |
| 2. The farmer let all of the sheep graze in the meadow. | <input type="text"/> |
| | <input type="text"/> |
| 3. The shrimp were thawed out and ready to serve. | <input type="text"/> |
| | <input type="text"/> |
| 4. The majestic elk lowered his head as if to bow. | <input type="text"/> |

Write a sentence using the singular and plural forms of these words.

1. (buffalo as singular)
2. (buffalo as plural)
3. (fish as singular)
4. (fish as plural)