Zero Conditional

Conditional Sentence Type 0 ➡ Used for scientific / general truth.

The condition always has the same result

Form: If + Present Simple, + Present Simple

If + Present Simple, + Present Simple	Present Simple if Present Simple
(Subj. + V.1) (Subj. + V.1)	(Subj. + V.1) (Subj. + V.1)
If you heat butter, it melts.	Butter melts if you heat butter.
If-clause	Result clause or Main clause
If you heat butter,	it melts.

Form: If + Past Simple, + Past Simple

If + Past Simple, + Past Simple	Past Simple if Past Simple
(Subj. + V.2) (Subj. + V.2)	(Subj. + V.2) (Subj. + V.2)
If you heated butter, it melted.	Butter melted if you heated butter.
If-clause	Result clause or Main clause
If you heated butter,	it melted.

* "If" may be replaced by "when"

Match the clause below.

1. If he is late for school,   •   • when we did our homework.
2. If you studied hard,   •   • if she doesn't have her glasses.

3. She can't read the book   •   • when you add a lot of sugar.
4. If I missed the bus,   •   • when he is happy.
5. When I cross the street,   •   • you got good grades.
6. She watches a funny movie •   • his teacher gets angry.
7. I usually wear hat,   •   • when she's sad.
8. He always smiles,   •   • I took a taxi to school.
9. we listened to music   •   • when it's sunny.
10. Coffee tastes sweet   •   • I always look left and right.

S.Rattana