Travel Broadens the mind

Choose the correct answer.

I grew up in a small, isolated village in the middle of nowhere with very few links to the outside world. If I hadn't gone overseas, I (would, challenging, beauty) find my job more difficult. Travelling (beaten, track, allows) you to witness many beautiful sights, (diversity, abroad, such) as Mount Everest towering in the (distance, maintain, appreciate) and sunsets at Ayer's Rock in (out-of-way, middle, Australia). This has helped me to appreciate (of, the, nowhere) beauty and diversity of our planet. (Isolated, Of, Towering) course, living abroad, very often in (off, close, far-flung) places, allowed me to meet other (people, secluded, sights) from different walks of life and (difficult, I, the) made many new friends. However, living (often, overseas, in) such out-of-the-way places sometimes meant it (was, out-of-way, abroad) difficult to form close relationships and (maintain, overseas, sights) friendships since I had to change (schools, towering, secluded) frequently. If I had stayed in (of, one, maintain) place, then I might have closer (friends, nowhere, foreign) now.

Although it was great to (meet, in, track) so many people from a variety (of, beaten, challenging) cultures and backgrounds, living off the (middle, often, beaten) track in a foreign country without (isolated, any, appreciate) close friends can be very challenging. (It, The, Close) is at times like these, in (diversity, such, beauty) secluded places, when you appreciate the (importance, track, in) of family. The old saying 'home (beaten, is, of) where the heart is' is very (true, foreign, challenging) when moving to a completely new (abroad, country, sights) for the first time. I think (difficult, towering, that) I might not appreciate my wife (diversity, maintain, and) children as much if I hadn't (close, the, had) their support. Travelling has definitely made (me, overseas, beauty) aware of what's important in life.
