Young musicians around the world

Serena Wang was 10 years old when she played the piano for the first time with a symphony orchestra in China. Can you imagine playing the piano in front of 500 people with 50 other musicians! After that concert, everyone was astonished by Serena's talent. When she was 15, she was invited to play with the United Nations in a special ceremony. In December, 2016 she appeared as a soloist with the China Philharmonic Orchestra when they toured the United States.

Serena started her piano lesson when she was four. After playing for only eight months, she won a prize. When she was five, she became the youngest winner for piano playing at a university in the United States. Since then, she has won prize after prize, and has become quite famous!

Even though Serena is talented, she has to work very hard to be an excellent pianist. She practices four or five hours a day, every day.
