

D. Complete with who, which, whose, when or where.

If they can be omitted, put them in brackets.

A good friend is a person 1 _____ you can have fun with, but can also depend on in time of need. However, there are times 2 _____ you might get into an argument, even with your best friend. What should you do if this happens? First of all, after an argument, it is best not to talk to your friend right away, because you might both say things 3 _____ you don't mean. A person 4 _____ first reaction is to talk right after a fight is bound to get into an even bigger one. If you get into an argument, it probably means that you both disagree on a topic, so take this time to consider the fact that maybe you're the one 5 _____ is wrong. If the issue isn't one 6 _____ is that serious, consider apologising to your friend. He/She probably wants to do the same thing. After a while, when both of you aren't as angry as you were when you got into the argument, find a place 7 _____ you can discuss the situation quietly. Don't become aggressive, and listen to what your friend has to say. Friendship is a relationship 8 _____ requires patience and compassion.
