There are less angelic episodes in her life, too.

McLaird says she was a dance hall girl for at least some time of her life, and was one of Swearengen's Gem girls in the early days of Deadwood.

According to the testimony of Deadwood bartenders, she graduated from painted lady to recruiter, sent by Swearengen to neighboring areas to bring back girls for him.

On one trip, she was said to have returned to Deadwood with 10 Nebraska girls, tricked into working for Swearengen with stories of wealth and adventure.
