

Growing with Value – Integrity Thrown into Prison

The Midianites who bought Joseph took him to Egypt and sold him to a man named Potiphar. God did not abandon Joseph in his trial as a slave. Joseph was successful in everything he did, and Potiphar noticed this. Potiphar gave Joseph authority and responsibility in his household. Joseph grew in his new role. The house of Potiphar prospered because of Joseph's wise management.

Potiphar's wife was not a noblewoman. She noticed how Joseph had grown and matured into a handsome young man. Potiphar's wife wanted to be unfaithful to her husband. But Joseph obeyed and feared God. So he ran from her when she tried to get him alone. She ripped off Joseph's cloak as he ran from her. She told her husband a lie. She said that Joseph attacked her and that she grabbed his cloak as he was leaving. Potiphar was incredibly angry. He had Joseph thrown into prison.

Joseph was punished for something he did not do. One day, the king's baker and butler were thrown into prison. That night, they both had dreams. Joseph came to help them. Because God was helping him, Joseph could understand the dreams. The butler's dream showed that he would be released in three days. The baker's dream showed that he would be hanged in three days. Three days later, both dreams come true.

One day, Pharaoh was troubled by two strange dreams that he had the night before. The first dream was about seven fat cows being eaten by seven skinny cows. The second dream was about seven fat ears of corn growing on one stalk and seven thin ears coming up and devouring them. Pharaoh asked all his wise men, magicians, and fortune tellers to tell him what the dreams meant. But no one could. The dreams came from God. Only God could reveal them.

The butler remembered Joseph and told Pharaoh about him. Joseph appeared before Pharaoh and said that he could reveal nothing. But God could tell him what the dreams meant. Joseph told Pharaoh that the dreams meant that Egypt would soon experience seven years of plenty. There would be good weather, lots of food and peace in the land. But then there would be seven years of very bad weather and famine (no rain and no crops grow). Everyone would be hungry, and many would die. Pharaoh was upset.

Joseph told Pharaoh to make someone in charge of storing food for the hard times that were coming. Pharaoh thought that was a good idea. Joseph was made second-in-command of Egypt. Joseph stored grain in preparation for the upcoming famine. When the famine began, people would come to Joseph to buy the grain that he had saved.

For seven years, the crops grew well, and Joseph set aside much food, but the time came when nothing would grow. People ate the last of their own grain and would have starved, but Joseph opened the storehouses and fed the people.
