

WS S.S. 23 – 4Justice leads to good relationships

If we want to have a healthy coexisting (existing side-by-side), it is necessary to treat people with dignity (respect and honor) and fairness. Justice, as a value, is to recognize and respect the rights of people and to give everyone what they deserve.

1. Read the following scenarioCase 1

Ximena can't pitch in for the materials needed for the project because her mom lost her job. Some classmates wanted to take her out of the team because Ximena couldn't pitch in just as everyone else. The kids said, "It's not fair that we have to buy the materials but not you."

Case 2

Juan couldn't do his homework because his grandpa is sick and Juan was the only one taking care of him. Juan's teacher said, "You have a zero because you didn't turn in your homework."

2. Analyze the following questions and share with the class what you think about it.

- a) In each case what was fair for Ximena and Juan?
- b) What could people have done to bring Justice?
- c) How justice helps people get along?
- d) How could an unfair situation turn into a conflict?
