OK, class. You all were born near end of the 20th century, so you are part the generation called the Millennials. general, each generation has certain characteristics. The main characteristic of Millennials is that you grew up with technology, so you are what we call "technology natives". You tend to be multicultural and interested global issues, and you are connected people all around the world through social networks. Millennials are extremely self-confident. You feel that your opinions are valuable, and you want to participate decisions in your job. Most Millennials want to get a variety of work experience, so you usually don't stay in one job a long time. Because Millennials are very sociable, many you prefer working in groups or teams. You are good communicating and working other people. But watch out, Millennials! Here comes post-Millennial generation - people born the year 2000!
