

Vocabulary training

State and Society

Match two parts of the sentence.

1. Working towards peace in Ukraine requires international cooperation and diplomatic efforts.

It involves recognizing the consequences of our choices and actively contributing to our communities and society.

2. Taking on responsibility means being accountable for our actions and making a positive impact.

The ongoing war has caused significant suffering and instability.

3. Speaking up for what's right and standing up against unfairness is super important.

It means putting yourself in someone else's shoes and trying to understand what they're going through.

4. Ageism is like judging a book by its cover, but with people.

But here's the deal: they are usually far from the truth.

5. Empathy is like having a superpower for building awesome friendships.

We can't just sit back and let things happen when we see inequality or injustice.

6. Making sure everyone is treated fairly and with respect is a big deal at our school.

Our principal wants to create a place where everyone feels like they belong and are appreciated for who they are.

7. Stereotypes are like those annoying labels that people stick on each other.

Young or old, we all have something valuable to offer, and it's important to respect and listen to each other, no matter how many years we've been on this planet.

