Three great campsites to visit

Hillside

This campsite is quite near a main road, so it's easy to find. You can camp there anytime you like, even in winter, which is why most of the things to do are inside – the pool, the games room and the café. Families will enjoy it here, as the pool is very safe and there's a lovely playground. It's also very quiet at night – there's no disco or noisy groups of campers. The staff are good, but they should try to be more friendly.

Green Farm

You can easily get lost on the way to Green Farm if you don't know where you're going. There are lots of activities for adults and teenagers to do on the campsite, including a golf course and a lake where you can go fishing and sailing. If you're interested in surfing, you should probably choose a different campsite, as Green Farm is quite a long way from the sea. If you need to buy food, there's a small supermarket next to the office.

Castletown

Castletown is right next to a village, and just a short walk from a beach. It's open from April to October. It's probably not the best place for older people or young children, as there's a disco in the village that plays loud music until quite late. The shops in the village are very useful, as there aren't any on the campsite. Campsite staff can help you with any problems or questions, and are always smiling and chatting with visitors.

PART 3

QUESTIONS 14–18

For each question, choose the correct answer.

An exciting hobby

Tanya Phillips explains why she's crazy about motorbikes.

I started riding a motorbike when I was 18. I was living in Edinburgh at the time, and I was using the bus to get to work, which I hated. I thought about learning to drive, but cars are expensive, so I bought a motorbike. I was the first of my friends to get one.

Over the next 5 years, I only used my motorbike in the city. Then a friend invited me on a motorbike ride through the Australian desert. It was amazing, and when I got home, I bought an adventure motorbike and started riding in wild places like forests in my free time.

Before any big ride, I make sure I know exactly where I'm going. I don't like asking for help, so I take maps and check the weather. Then when I'm riding, I can just forget about everything except me and the bike. That's what I like best.

I'm not afraid of riding in unusual places. I went to Iceland in the middle of winter. It was dark most of the day, so I had to be really careful and stay on the roads. I'd like to go again in summer when there's more light and then I can go on the smaller paths.

This year, I did my first 24-hour adventure motorbike race – across the African desert. It was really difficult, and when I finished all I wanted to do was sleep. But then I found out I was the winner – I couldn't believe it! I can't wait to enter next year's race.

14 Tanya first began riding a motorbike because

- A she didn't like driving a car in Edinburgh.
- B her friends told her it was a good idea.
- C she wanted a better way to travel to her job.

15 When did riding a motorbike become Tanya's hobby?

- A after a trip
- B after riding through a forest
- C after meeting someone in Australia

16 What's Tanya's favourite thing about riding a motorbike?

- A She can spend time alone.
- B She can look at the countryside.
- C She can stop thinking about other things.

17 If Tanya goes to Iceland again,

- A she'll go to another part of the country.
- B she'll go at a different time of year.
- C she'll spend more time there.

18 After her first motorbike race, Tanya was surprised by

- A how well she did.
- B how tired she felt.
- C how difficult the race was.
