Do you like the taste of hot cocoa or a chocolate candy bar? Both of these products are made from cacao.

Cacao is a type of evergreen tree that grows in Central and South America. The tree has pink and yellow flowers and reddish fruits that grow on the tree's branches and trunk. It is the seed, or bean, inside the fruit of the cacao that is the source of cocoa, chocolate, and cocoa butter.

After the beans are harvested, they are dried and packed in bags for shipping. Cocoa beans are shipped to many parts of the world. Today, chocolate is popular almost everywhere.
