The best person in Percy Jackson's world

This year I'm reading "Percy Jackson and the lightning thief." This book is about a 12-year-old boy, called Percy, whose life completely changes in 6th grade. After facing weird experiences for a long time, Percy discovers that his true identity is tied to Greek mythology. Although he is just finding out a lot of secrets about his own life, Percy still thinks that his mom, Sally Jackson, was the best person in the world. I completely agree with him and in this essay I will explain why.

Sally Jackson was a kindhearted woman and a loving mother. Even though Sally had a terrible childhood she was always kind with others. She never had an ill reaction towards Gabe, her husband who treated her horribly. Even though, Percy never heard his mom raise her voice or say an unkind word to anyone. Moreover, she generously spent her money on her uncle's cancer treatment, giving up her dream of finishing school and going to college. This shows what an extraordinary woman she was.

Even though, Sally was an affectionate mother who tried to keep her son with her as much as possible. She did all she can to keep Percy safe but near at the same time sending him to different schools. Even though, she was very protective of her son and would do anything for him. Even though that Sally taught Percy how to fight a monstrous creature and she even risked her own life to get him and his friend, Grover, to "Camp half blood," a place where he will be safer than with her. It is evident that Sally's love for her son is infinite.

Even though, it can be said that Sally Jackson really was the most amazing person. She had the most noble heart and took care of her son fiercely. She is definitely a role model in this story and although she died, I'm sure Sally will live on in Percy's memory and heart, and that he will become a great man thanks to his mom's teachings.
