

PEOPLE

Robin and Melis are talking about unique personalities

R: Did you meet that guy, Ali, at the party last night?

M: Oh my God, he was so egotistical. He kept talking about how intelligent he was and how much money he made. He even said he was thinking about becoming a professional model. Like that is ever going to happen!

R: And, Cem, the artist from London, he was rather eccentric! He told me he sculpts and paints nothing but owls. He even said he wanted to introduce a new line of owls jewellery. That is little odd.

M: He wasn't strange at all. I thought he was very imaginative. You have to be very creative to become such a professional and successful artist. He was also incredibly sensitive-he almost started crying as he told me about his art. By the way, look at the ring he gave me.

R: He gave you an owl ring? That's the ugliest thing I have ever seen!

M: It is not! I think it is really sophisticated. He said this jewellery is the latest trend among the London elite. Wasn't that thoughtful of him to give me one of his creations?

R: Not really. I think he just wanted some free advertising

M: My God, you are so cynical! Wasn't there anybody you liked at the party?

R: Yeah, Bora was really nice. He was the only sensible, clear-thinking person I met there.

M: Oh, the waitress is coming. Have you decided what to order?

R: I'm not sure what to order. I can't decide what I want.

M: You are so picky. Nothing is ever good enough for you.

R: That is not true! I am just little indecisive.

M: Well, you need to decide soon so we can order. I'm starving.
