Recent studies say that there are now over 400 million mother-tongue speakers of English, but there are (1) more people (2) use English as a second language – around 500 million. However, estimates vary because there aren't (3) official figures.

English is still the main language in countries like Nigeria or Ghana, (4) were once ex-British colonies. People need to use English in (5) official situations, such as in the government and education. Why don't these countries use a local language instead? Because it's too difficult to choose between the (6) other languages (7) belong to the local people!

However, it's difficult to know the number of second-language English speakers in these countries because (8) the ex-British colonies are in poor parts of the world, (9) people don't often get an education. This means that only a small percentage of the local population can speak English really well, but (10) can say a few words in English.
