

Possessive 's and s'

Using s to show who things belong to

's/s' + people, things, places

In this unit you learn to talk about who things belong to using 's, s' and of. You also learn some more irregular forms for plural nouns.

Use of the apostrophe ('s and s')

You use 's and s' to talk about people's possessions and their relation to each other.

Silvia is David's wife.

Anna and Mark are Jane's cousins.

My parents' best friends live in Canada.*

Sometimes, when the meaning is clear, you can use 's without a noun.

I've seen that car before. It's Diana's.

Rob is at Tom's. (= Tom's house)

If a name ends in s, you just add the apostrophe ' to show possession.

I think James' painting is better than mine.

Remember!

You use of + noun, not 's to talk about objects.

The walls of the house are green.

There's a button at the back of the computer.

You can also talk about times and places using 's and s'.

I've just got three days' work in a shop.

London's shopping centres are very busy in December.*
