

DEFINING RELATIVE CLAUSES

Choose the correct relative pronouns to complete the following defining relative clauses: who, which, that, where

June 1.

Now I am writing in the journal _____ I found in the woods. This is a very interesting book _____ I can find many information about paranormal activity in the town of Gravity Falls. Now everything _____ I can see in the town seems suspicious to me. For example, take this new boyfriend of Mabel _____ she met just an hour ago. I have never seen a person _____ looks so strange. But Stan never notices anything strange. Stan is the person _____ only cares how to make more money from tourists. But anyway, our Mystery Shack is the place _____ nothing strange never happens.

June 3.

I was wrong about Mystery Shack. But I was kinda right about Norman _____ was Mabel's boyfriend. He happened to be a bunch of gnomes. Don't ask me why. But at least I found the person _____ I can trust to. And this is my sister Mabel _____ likes to collect stickers and wear sweaters. I also got a new cap _____ has got a pine tree on it. I can't wait to find other mysteries _____ this journal hides. This summer _____ looked very boring to me now promises new adventures and mysteries. This is Dipper Pines, signing off for the night.

