"The Spanish. If the team manages to win this game, it'll get to the final." "They will.

The final score will be 2-1 to the Spanish Club."

Jim turned to his dad: "How do you know?"

"It's not me. A colleague of mine has predicted the results of ten matches. No mistake yet.

Today's the tenth game." Jim looked at his father again. "Sounds a bit crazy.

But if I were able to predict the results of the game..."

"If you were able to predict it, it wouldn't be interesting to watch football at all.

Are you hungry by the way? I have ordered some pizza. Will you join me?"

"Yes, sure," Jim turned to his father. "But I still cannot understand..."

And at that very moment the Spanish forward scored the first goal.
