Pleased to greet you!
Greeters are local people who volunteer to show visitors around their town or area. Here, we meet three of them.

A Haroula Jackson
Haroula Jackson is a Greek Australian who shows Greek visitors around her area of Melbourne. Her guest today is Nick Tavrides. Harioula hopes to find someone who knew Nick's great-uncle, who settled in Melbourne seventy years ago. He also hopes they may even bump into a distant cousin or uncle.

B Pablo Hernandez
In Buenos Aires a retired university teacher, Pablo Hernandez, enjoys showing visitors around his area: the Recoleta neighbourhood. Today he is looking after Sylvie and her friend Stéphane from France. They want to see some of the buildings that were designed by French architects a century ago. Paolo always takes his guests to the extraordinary El Palacio de las Aguas Corrientes and its strange collection of toilets!

C Anthea Cohen
In London, local historian Anthea Cohen is about to set off on a tour of Hampstead and Highgate, two north London villages. The tour leaves at ten o'clock exactly and she never waits for late arrivals to turn up. She begins by visiting the house where the famous poet Keats lived. And she finishes the tour with a visit to Highgate Cemetery. This is the resting place of many famous people including Karl Marx.
