

Values and Pathway Decisions

1. Select two of the following questions and answer using two-three sentences for each topic..
 - The whole world would listen to you for one minute. What would you say?
 - A friend asked you to shoplift a loaf of bread to give to a homeless person. What would you do? Why?
 - You suddenly moved to a different continent. How would you adapt to that change?
 - You could give a Nobel Prize to the person you most admire. Who would you give the award to? Why?

2. What were your top five value characteristics?

- 1.
- 2.
- 3.
- 4.

- 5.
3. After the auction, what values did you end up with?
4. Why did we do a "bidding" for these values, do you think? How does the bidding represent what we do with values in real life?
5. Is your set of most important values the same as someone else's? How might these similarities and differences play out when we are making career and college decisions?
6. How does class or economic resources affect our ability to gain some of these values? What do you think about this issue?