Once upon a time, there was a young woman named Emily who loved to grab coffee from her local café every morning before work. One day, as she was waiting in line to order, she overheard two people insulting each other in the corner of the café. Emily couldn't help but feel uncomfortable and decided to shy away from the commotion. As she ordered her coffee, she noticed that the barista was wearing a name tag that said "When you least expect it."

Curious, Emily asked the barista what the tag meant. The barista replied, "It's a reminder to be prepared for anything. You never know what could happen when you least expect it."

Emily shrugged it off and grabbed her coffee, heading to work. However, on her way to the office, she was suddenly approached by a stranger who demanded her purse. Emily was caught off guard and didn't know what to do.

But then, she remembered the barista's name tag and decided to act. She quickly handed over her purse, but not before grabbing her hot coffee and throwing it in the stranger's face. The hot liquid burned the stranger's eyes and he stumbled back in pain, giving Emily the chance to run away.

Emily was shaken up but relieved that she had been prepared for the unexpected. She realized that the barista's name tag had been a sign, and she was grateful for it.

As she walked into work, she couldn't help but think about the different outcomes that could have happened if she hadn't been prepared. She was grateful for the barista's reminder to always be ready for anything.

From that day on, Emily made it a point to always be aware of her surroundings and to never underestimate the power of being prepared. And whenever she saw the barista's name tag, she couldn't help but smile, knowing that it had helped her in her time of need.
